MARSHALL FACES MURDER CHARGE FOLLOWING SHOOTING OF ENGINEER

was taken to the Queen's hospital. Guertler had already been placed on the operating table and the physicians directed Dick to summon the wounded man's wife, saying that Guertler's death was imminent.

Slowly the condition of the wounded man grew worse. Stimulants were applied, but only prolonged his life for a few hours. By his bedside at the hospital the wife watched. He died while she sat near him. The autopsy showed this morning that the bullet had entered his abdomen by the right side, taking a downward course.

Guertler was one of the oldest employees of the J. G. White Construction Company, which is one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country. It was a bidder for the construction of the Panama Canal.

Dick is the cashier of the company here; Frank, an engineer in its employ, and Miller is one of the foremen.

The statements made by Madame Puahi and other eye-witnesses to the affair are without serious variations.
The woman states that Guertler was acting as peace-maker and did all possible to persuade Marshall to leave.

The dead man was prominently identified with the Masonic fraternity in the east.

Eye-Witnesses' Statement
W. R. Dick, who was with Guertler, George Frank and Edward Miller, made the following statement this morning:

"We had been to the prize fight—Guertler, Frank, Miller and I—and afterwards we went to Madame Puahi's to see a hula dance. We had not been there long before Marshall came in.
He seemed to be under the influence of drink and was in a quarrelsome mood. After making a few personal remarks and interfering generally with our conversation, he challenged me to a friendly fist fight, and removed his coat and shirt.

"Before we began, Miller jumped at him, and I had some trouble in stopping the two from fighting. Finally I managed to pacify Marshall and we all agreed to go, but was not out of the room more than fifteen minutes before he returned, and again he disturbed us with his remarks. We all urged him to leave and not return while we were there, telling him that he would be better off somewhere else. He left with a threat of bringing his gang and returning to fight us all.

"About a half-hour later he was back again. I understand that he went to his room and took a pistol from the trunk of a man named Drew, with whom he roomed. Anyway, after he came into the room where we were, he pulled a 38-caliber pistol from his pocket, deliberately aiming it at Guertler and fired.

Signalled for Police
"The wounded man walked to the end of the room with the assistance of one of us. Marshall walked over to the bench in the room and sat down.
Several of us jumped at him. I grabbed the pistol from his right hand, and then walked over to the injured man, while the others held Marshall.

"Guertler was carried to a machine and taken to the Queen's Hospital. I realized that he was seriously hurt. In the meantime the police were notified.
I understand. After Guertler was put in the machine, I walked down to the waterfront and discharged every bullet in the weapon as a signal for alarm for the police. The police being notified of the affair, sent a machine to the house and I stopped it, surrendering the pistol to police officer No.
3. That was about 3:30 o'clock a. m.
We had come to the hula house about 1 o'clock in the morning. The police then took me to the hospital, at my request. Guertler was already on the operating table when I got there. I spoke with the doctor and he advised me to notify Mrs. Guertler at once, saying that her husband was in a very dangerous condition.

"As for the reason of Marshall picking out Guertler and shooting him and not attempting to injure any others of our crowd, I believe he was angered at Guertler because the latter had not given him employment. Marshall was let out of the Waialae job a few weeks ago, when the shutting down of the smaller tunnels was begun. Since then he had been trying to get a job, but without success.

"When he pulled the pistol from his pocket, we were of course all very much surprised. Before we could speak or take any action to stop him, he had fired the shot."

Woman's Story Favorable to Guertler.
Madame Puahi's story of the accident, told in considerable detail to a representative of the Star-Bulletin this morning, is very favorable to Guert-ler's conduct throughout the affair and she declares that instead of participating in the revels of the evening, he was quiet and sober and tried not only to get his party away from the resort but acted the part of a pacifier when the series of quarrels arose.

Madame Puahi's story, told with considerable excitement and at times a little incoherence, is as follows:

Marshall arrived at her place on Kapahulu road about 11 o'clock on Saturday night. The other party, including Guertler and his friends, came about 2:30 or 2:45. The auto in which Marshall came was then standing outside near the main entrance.

The second party commenced to dicker for a hula dance and finally $11 was paid for a dance of half an hour. Someone of the party had noticed Marshall's machine and asked who was in it. When told that Marshall had come, they demanded to know where he was and were told that he had gone to sleep in a back room.
Several members of the party thereupon went into this room and got Marshall out and back into the main hall.

Guertler did not mix into this at all, declares Madame Puahi. She goes on to say that Marshall and the others got into a series of rows and were so boisterous that she tried twice to give back the money and to get them to leave the place, which they refused to do. Once she was called from the back room by the sound of scuffling and found Marshall on the floor with three men on top of him. Her husband, she says, helped straighten out this tangle and Marshall was driven from the house. As he attempted to get into his machine, she avers, he was pulled out by some of the others.
Finally, making some uncertain threats and being answered with threats by the men he had been fighting with, she says Marshall got into the machine and drove away down the road.

Came Back by Side Entrance.

A short time later he came back, says the woman, and gained access to the house by a side entrance, getting into a sort of back hall that led on to the main hall. Guertler was sitting across the main hall taking no part in the festivities. Marshall said he wanted to talk to Guertler and insisted on seeing him. With evident reluctance Guertler went out to meet Marshall. The other members of Guertler's party followed their comrade and when they got out where Marshall had taken his stand there was a scuffle during which Marshall pulled his revolver. The woman says that she was standing between Marshall and Guertler and had Guertler by the arm trying to pull him away from the impending trouble. Marshall, she declares, reached around under her arm until his revolver almost touched Guertler and then pulled the trigger.

The woman said this morning that the members of the second party brought with them a large amount of liquor of various kinds. She says this party seemed to "have it in" for Marshall and that they were continually cursing him whether he was present or away. She says that Guertler, however, was a non-combatant throughout and that she did not see him take a drink.

This morning Madame Puahi had a necktie, collar and tie-pin belonging to someone of those who took part in the affray, just whom she was not sure.

Believed Temporarily Insane.

This morning Marshall was to be seen in the courtyard of the jail. He walked about, sometimes with an officer, who had brought him the news of the death of Guertler, sometimes alone. He is a young, clean-cut man of about 32 years.

What statements he has made to the officials could not be learned this morning. Permission was refused to everyone to talk with the arrested man, and it was stated that an interview with him would not be permitted until after the coroner's jury had completed its investigation and made its report.

Opinions are being given today that Marshall was temporarily insane when he shot down Guertler. A. A. Wilson, in charge of the Waialae tunnel project, was one to give such an opinion. He stated that Marshall was of a very nervous disposition, high-strung and an exceedingly intelligent young man.

"I have known Marshall for quite awhile," Mr. Wilson stated this morning. "He first began work for me at Hilo, and later on the Waialae job as superintendent of construction.
Everything he did seemed to be under white-hot mental pressure. He was of a nervous, high-strung nature. In my opinion he was temporarily insane when he shot Guertler."

"He had many friends. When the side-tunnel work was stopped the first of this month Marshall was let out with a number of other engineers.
He had been working for us since the last of March. He had left me at Hilo and returned to the mainland, later to come back here. He arrived last March and went to work on the tunnel."

Remains Shipped to Virginia.
Mr. Guertler's remains will be shipped to the home of his wife in Clifton Forge, Va. Mrs. Guertler, her young son Cecil and George S. Frank, assistant to Guertler, will accompany the remains, sailing in the Wilhelmina Wednesday.

All operations of the J. G. White Engineering Company have been closed down until the sailing of the Wilhelmina. John Lyons, an assistant of Guertler's at the Koko Head work, taking charge of the company's affairs pending the appointment of a new superintendent.

Work! Work! Work!

"BY THE SWEAT OF THY BROW SHALT THOU EARN THY BREAD" was the sentence handed out to Adam when he lost his job in the apple orchard.

The sentence was tempered with mercy, however, for Eve went with him, and he was not required to work all the time.

THE BUSINESS MEN OF HONOLULU ARE SERVING THEIR SENTENCES, sweat and all, these August days; but they are overdoing it.

"ALL WORK AND NO PLAY MAKES JACK A DULL BOY."

OUR ADVICE TO YOU IS:

Buy yourself and Eve a ticket by next Mauna Kea, come to Hilo and REST AND PLAY A MONTH.

Cool weather, new scenes, good service, cheap rates.

In the long run you will do more work, make more money, and be a better citizen for it.
